William McColgan – Entrepreneur/Advisor

“A man can succeed at almost anything for which he has unlimited enthusiasm.” – Charles Schwab

William is a seasoned professional with experience working across borders, cultures, and languages. As a former principle with Mercer Consulting based out of Ireland, Germany and the US, William led several global strategic initiatives including the development and deployment of a Global actuarial valuation platform. His ability to maintain positive international business relationships while respecting local customs and international governmental requirements makes William a valuable business asset. Currently, as a Director with Liberty Mutual, William leads the team charged with process improvement and increasing run-rate efficiencies of the corporation’s extensive claims handling solution.

In his continuous drive to improve not only the businesses he works for, but also himself, William completed his MBA at The Wharton School – University of Pennsylvania in 2010 with a major in Entrepreneurial Management. He completed his undergraduate education in Accountancy & Finance through Heriot-Watt University in Edinburgh, Scotland.

William's varied career has spanned across actuarial consulting, compliance, change management, and even working as migrant laborer on a tobacco farm. His diversity and dynamic background make him a valuable asset to any project to which he is assigned. Today, William lives and works in New Hampshire where he enjoys motorcycling and reading.
